

Hi Humaniser! Moment

Pause for Clarity

This moment reminds us to pause and check
the obvious before it becomes a problem.

*Small habits shape
how teams work together.*

Pause for Clarity (3-5 minutes)

When to use it

At the start of a meeting, especially when discussing plans, responsibilities, or decisions.

It works best as a short reminder, not a discussion.

How it works

- Show the Pause for Clarity slide.
- Remind the team that assumptions often hide in plain sight.
- Invite people to notice where something might need confirming.

Why it helps

Many misunderstandings don't come from bad intentions. They come from things everyone thought were obvious but never actually checked.

Tips

Keep it simple.

The goal is not to over analyse assumptions, it's just to pause and confirm key details before moving on.

Pause for Clarity

When we are busy, we often move forward based on what we think was understood or agreed. Later we realise people interpreted things differently.

It can help to pause and ask:

- Are we interpreting this the same way?
- Is anything still unclear before we move on?
- Does anything need a quick confirmation?
